Description

You may seek compensation where you have suffered bodily harm, mental or nervous shock or pregnancy resulting from an offence, and have reported the incident to the police, regardless of whether a person has been identified, charged or convicted of the offence. Our experienced, friendly and approachable criminal injury lawyers can firstly provide you with advice on whether or not you are eligible to make a claim, and then help you lodge the claim and obtain the maximum entitlement possible. At Trewin Norman, your first consultation is free and at no obligation. Legal fees are not payable up-front, and are only payable upon successful settlement of your claim.
